

Congress Gets New Problem

Defense Commission Has Plan to Accelerate Munitions Production in U. S. Will Meet F.D.R. Newly Named Defense Commission to Talk at White House

Washington, Aug. 24 (P)—The defense commission handed Congress a new legislative problem today with its announcement of a plan for accelerating munitions production by extending to manufacturers contracts on which they may borrow money for plant expansion.

Commission officials said it would be possible to step up airplane and other material orders substantially as soon as legislative authority was granted for these contracts and Congress had acted also on a supplementary defense appropriation and two other pending proposals for relaxing present profit and tax restrictions on manufacturers.

Other developments in the nation's fast-moving defense preparations included:

White House Conference
A conference between President Roosevelt and the six American members of the joint United States-Canadian defense board, which was named Thursday. The White House meeting is preliminary to the full board's first session in Ottawa Monday.

Indications that President Roosevelt will sign an early date legislation for mobilizing 396,000 men in the National Guard and army reserve units. It was expected that the first group called out would number 60,000 officers and men with other units to be mobilized later.

Announcement that contracts have been signed for 2,800 of the 4,200 planes for which funds were available on July 1.

Announcement that the war department has undertaken a program to provide housing and recruiting shelters for 317,309 men at 34 army posts.

The defense commission's new plan for expanding production facilities is based upon a contract in which the government agrees to reimburse manufacturers in five annual installments for the cost of building new factories or additions. On this federal promise to pay a manufacturer could borrow from his bank the actual cash for construction.

Present law prohibits a government contractor from assigning rights under his contract to another. Officials explained that legislation was needed to remove that barrier before the plan could be put into operation.

Reported Improved
Superintendent Melvin Wolff of the city hall is reported as somewhat improved at his home on Crane street. He was suddenly stricken ill while at work at the city hall on Thursday. While Mr. Wolff is confined to his home, his duties have been taken over by Superintendent Joseph Davis of the municipal auditorium who will serve until Lewis M. Sharp, the other superintendent of the city hall, returns early next week from his vacation trip in the White Mountains.

Channel Battle Brings Melee of Planes vs. Guns

German Bombers Fly at 20,000 Feet Upon Trip Over British Coast as Duel Is Staged by Long-Range Guns; One Killed at Dover

(By The Associated Press)
British and German long-range guns exchanged high explosive shells across a twenty-two mile stretch of English channel today, while high above the English countryside the rival air forces locked in battles as the Nazis renewed their mass bombing attacks.

The early shelling of the Dover coastal area nearly smothered the sound of the advancing German bombers. They came over 20,000 feet high with the sun at their backs.

One formation of at least 55 bombers was seen moving along under a cloud of Messerschmitt fighters. Other waves followed.

Soon the anti-aircraft guns were hammering away and swarms of British fighters rose like wasps to meet the invaders.

Then the big British guns opened up on the German emplacements across the choppy waters, aiming at the brief bright flashes of fire visible from the high chalk cliffs.

Woman Is Killed
Three German shells landed on the South Kent coast early in the bombardment, wrecking a house in Dover, killing a woman and injuring several persons.

Other casualties were reported from a town in East Anglia, where Nazi bombs dropped.

A communiqué issued jointly by the air and home security, said a few German planes approached the London area, but did not get beyond the outskirts. At least three Nazi planes were reported shot down. British fighters returning to their bases signaled aerial triumphs by "rolling" as they neared home.

The bombers got close enough to London to cause the air raid warnings to sound, and thousands of Londoners, bound for work, had to hurry into air raid shelters until the danger passed.

Berlin announced that the German naval forces had sunk the "armed" British merchant vessel Turakina, 8,706 tons, in Australian waters, and that submarines in the past eight days have destroyed 100,000 tons of merchant shipping.

The Turakina sent a radio call from the Tasman Sea Tuesday night saying a surface raider had attacked her.

Parachutes Are Dropped
Some of the force of the German air attacks was thrown against the industrial midlands. Unconfirmed reports said the Nazis had dropped parachutes in addition to hundreds of bombs.

The parachutes were said to have fallen in the midlands, where a small squadron of bombers loosed 200 to 300 incendiary bombs on a single area and dropped high explosives on a town.

There were numerous reports of other isolated bombing attacks in southwest and southeast England and South Wales.

Calling up of Rumanian army reserve officers added to the explosive situation.

Greece's forebodings about Italy also were kept keen as new classifications of Greeks were called to the colors and a Fascist source declared that Italy would invade Greece if Britain attempted to occupy any Greek islands.

The Italian press agitation against Greece extended to Albania, Italian-conquered country where Fascists contend friction with Greece first developed.

Argentine Cabinet May Be Shuffled Despite Indications Ortiz Succeeds

Buenos Aires, Aug. 24 (P)—Shuffling of the Argentine cabinet appeared inevitable today despite indications that President Roberto M. Ortiz had succeeded in easing his administration over a threatened crisis provoked by an investigation into allegedly questionable army land purchases.

Barring unforeseen developments, the ailing president was expected to win an overwhelming vote of confidence at a joint session of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies summoned this afternoon to consider his tendered resignation.

Political observers believed that the president's offer to resign had served the double purpose of rebuking officials implicated in the land transaction and bringing to the fore bickering liberals and conservatives, who were seemingly in

New Order Made Upon Rumania

Hungary Advances Plan Calling for Cession of Territory; Transfer Is Rejected Failure Is Seen

Foreign Observers Say Conferences Are Due for Failure

Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Aug. 24 (P)—The Hungarian-Rumanian conference over Transylvania collapsed today.

The two delegations, admitting failure to find a common ground for continuing the negotiations, prepared to depart for Bucharest and Budapest.

New Demand Made

Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Aug. 24 (P)—Hungary demanded that Rumania advance a plan specifically providing for the cession of territory as delegates representing the two nations resumed negotiations here today in an attempt to settle their dispute over the border province of Transylvania.

The Rumanian spokesman said continuation of the negotiations depended on Rumania's agreement to the basic principle of territorial revision rather than an exchange of populations.

Unexpected calling up of Rumanian reserve officers and canceling of army leaves had cast a shadow over today's resumption of Rumanian-Hungarian territorial negotiations, which foreign observers said were foredoomed to failure.

Reports from Budapest indicated Hungary was rejecting the Rumanian plan for complete transfer of populations.

Two-Thirds of Area

A Hungarian spokesman said his country had asked for about two-thirds of Transylvania's 35,000 square miles.

The differences of viewpoints brought a recess in negotiations earlier in the week, and most observers looked for an "agreement to disagree" unless a compromise on principles for approach to the problem could be reached quickly.

Germany's impatience with the course of negotiations, previously reported from Berlin, was evidenced further by sending of Helmuth Lanx, an attaché of the German foreign office to Turnu-Severin as official observer.

However, a Hungarian source predicted that, in event of failure of the negotiations, Germany and Italy would seek merely to prevent an armed clash rather than attempt immediate arbitration.

(At about the same time that Rumania's call-up of reserves and canceling of leaves was announced last night, the German wireless reported from Bucharest that the Rumanian crown council had met with King Carol under circumstances suggesting a cabinet shake-up.)

Meanwhile Rumanian and Bulgarian representatives are continuing conferences at Craiova over Bulgaria's claim to southern Dobruja, annexed to Rumania in 1913. Rumania is reported to have agreed to cede back this territory.

(The Rome radio asserted this morning that a Rumanian-Bulgarian treaty has been practically completed.)

Nine arrests for motor vehicle violations were made Friday by Trooper A. A. Whitney, patrolling route 9-W between Port Ewen and Marlborough.

Louis Taylor of Hopeton, Va., paid $7 when arraigned before Justice Benjamin H. Sleight of Port Ewen on a charge of reckless driving. Others who paid fines of $5 each on charges of driving on the wrong side of the dividing line, were:

Goodrich of the town of Esopus. Elsie J. Merritt of Brooklyn, Adam Thiel of Kingston, George R. Vincent of Port Ewen, Mary Marshall of Newburgh, Michael Arbabi of Brooklyn, all arraigned before Justice Sleight.

Downdraft Is Blamed

Denver, Aug. 24 (P)—Civil authorities tentatively blamed a "terrific downdraft" today for the crash of an army bomber that carried nine men to death as army authorities virtually eliminated the possibility lightning or a bomb explosion might have caused the tragedy. The plane, a B-18-A Douglas medium bomber, crashed in an electrical storm Thursday night. Major Leo H. Dawson, operations officer at Lowry field, said eight or nine possible explanations were under study. He said condition of the electrical wiring eliminated the lightning theory, and fifteen unexploded bombs were found in the wreckage. They were loaded with only enough powder to show a puff of smoke when striking ground targets.

Pierlot and Aides Planning to Quit; Inquart Is Leader

Belgian Sources Report Group Will Hand in Unequivocal Write; Dutch Feel Rule

Vichy, France, Aug. 24 (P)—The refugee Belgian government of Premier Hubert Pierlot plans to resign, informed sources here said today, since it is impossible to function under existing circumstances.

The premier and most members of his cabinet, which attempted to carry on from unoccupied France after King Leopold's surrender, previously offered their resignations, but the king refused to accept them. Now, Belgian sources said, they were determined on unequivocal resignation.

With the great homeward trek of Belgian refugees well underway the ministers' families have returned to Belgium. The ministers themselves are said to have decided to remain in southern France after disbanding the cabinet.

Belgian officials estimate it will take two months more to repatriate nearly 1,000,000 refugees. The Germans' frequent closures of the border between the occupied and unoccupied zones has stalled thousands of refugees in trains, automobiles or afoot.

Higher Netherlands officials, formerly appointed by Queen Wilhelmina, hereafter will be designated by Reichskommissar Arthur Seyss-Inquart. He also will have the power of dismissal formerly exercised by the queen.

Officials affected include the secretary general of administration, members of the state council, the president, vice-president and attorneys-general of the Supreme Court and other high courts, heads of the Dutch government police, heads of municipal police, commissioners of provinces formerly called "commissioners of the queen," mayors of provincial capitals and of towns with more than 50,000 population, and the president of the Netherlands Bank.

Woodstock Man Arrested Following Auto Accident

Allen Elwyn, 27, of Woodstock, suffered a laceration of the left eye and a nose abrasion when the sedan he was driving struck a truck on the Staatsburg by-pass on Friday. Elwyn was arrested by State Trooper Martin on a charge of reckless driving and furnished $25 bail for his appearance before Justice of the Peace Hill in Rhinebeck on September 6.

Trooper Martin reported that the sedan and truck, which was owned by the Hudson Motor Freight Service, Inc., of Troy, were proceeding north. The accident occurred when Elwyn attempted to pass the truck.

Chilly Weather Holds Throughout the State

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24 (P)—New York residents awoke today to find "topcoat" weather as the temperature tumbled to below freezing levels in some sections and established new records for the date.

The mercury touched 28 at Dexter airport, base for air planes at the recent war maneuvers, and 26 at Wanaquana in northern New York. Syracuse's 42 and Watertown's 36 were the lowest on record for the day while Albany's 45 equaled the previous mark. Buffalo recorded a minimum of 48.5, coldest August 24 since 1873.

Frost damaged truck crops in some areas.

Kingston's official reading was 46 degrees. The lowest temperature recorded in August, 1939, was 58 degrees.

Washington, Aug. 24 (P)—Slender, energetic Harry L. Hopkins, for six years chief of federal relief spending and for a year and a half secretary of commerce, will resign from the cabinet soon because of ill health.

The resignation will remove from President Roosevelt's official family one of his closest friends and advisers and will add another vacancy to the list of high government offices presently or prospectively unfilled.

Willkie Begins Work Upon His First Major Campaign Speeches

New York, Aug. 24 (P)—Wendell L. Willkie began today on his first major campaign address, concentrating on one which he said would try to show "why New Deal policies lead to business stagnation."

The Republican presidential nominee said the speech, would "make a comparison between recovery from this depression and recovery from previous depressions." He did not fix the place or date for its delivery.

Willkie held down his appointment list for the week-end after a round of conferences seeking to coordinate the campaign activities of the Republican national organization, the Willkie-for-President Clubs, and an independent Democratic group.

He issued a statement late yesterday declaring that the Roose-

Paul McNutt Offers To Debate Willkie; Cromwell Has Idea

Security Administrator Says He'd Take President's Place; Cromwell for Hoover Match

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 24 (P)—Paul V. McNutt awaited word today from Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, whom he has offered to meet in public debate.

The federal security administrator, taking up the challenge Willkie made to President Roosevelt, brought delegates and spectators at the Democratic state convention here to their feet last night as he interpolated into his prepared keynote address a challenge of his own:

"If he (Willkie) is so keen to debate I'll take him on; I've done it before."

McNutt credited the Roosevelt administration with saving America from conditions which he said were like those which led to the collapse of France and the peril of England.

Meanwhile at Sea Girt, N. J., James H. R. Cromwell, former U. S. minister to Canada and now Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate, suggested today Wendell L. Willkie challenge Herbert Hoover to a speaking duel on economics rather than President Roosevelt and said such debate would be "truly enlightening."

In a speech prepared for delivery before a huge statewide party rally on the National Guard reservation, Cromwell likened the Republican presidential nominee to Rip Van Winkle with the statement:

"Rip Van Winkle seems to have suffered an amazing metamorphosis in his slumbers, for he went to sleep—to judge from his own ac-

Form of Bill to Call for Immediate Draft, Strategists Predict at Capital

Debate Goes On

Senate Gives Up Usual Saturday Holiday to Debate Bill

Washington, Aug. 24 (P)—Administration strategists predicted today that the Senate would approve the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill next week by a margin of at least 10 votes and in a form calling for immediate conscription.

These leaders also said a recheck of their polls, following President Roosevelt's call for speedy enactment of a selective service law that would become effective at once, indicated that a substitute bill by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) to delay the draft until January 1 faced defeat by a margin of from two to four votes.

The Senate gave up its usual Saturday holiday to continue debate on the Burke-Wadsworth measure, and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, predicted a final vote on the bill "some time next week."

Barkley told reporters he had hope of getting the Senate to agree to a limitation of debate and expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt's expression should hasten action.

No Cut Expected
On the other hand, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), an opponent of conscription, said he thought no attempt would be made to cut off debate "on a matter of this importance."

The President said yesterday that to put off the actual drafting of men might delay the whole defense program a year or two and he remarked that Congress had been considering the matter since June 20 and still was talking.

Opponents to conscription conceded that Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that he was personally and absolutely opposed to postponement of compulsory military training was likely to swing the balance against Maloney's proposal to delay conscription until a system of voluntary one-year enlistments could be tried.

It Seems Obvious
Senator Walsh (D-Mass) told reporters that it seemed obvious to him that administration "pressure" would be exerted to get the bill through in its present form. As he remarked, the measure would require the registration of all men from 21 through 30 years old, making them subject to call to military service, with some exemptions.

"I think the President's statement means that the Burke-Wadsworth bill will be passed," Walsh said.

He added, however, that he would seek action on a resolution he introduced yesterday to require the war department to submit to the Senate in secret session information on defense equipment now on hand, as well as data on when equipment under order would be delivered.

He said he thought the Senate should have that information "before we start conscripting men."

Walsh asked whether it was not a fact that the army had recruited only 8,000 men for the enlarged air corps recently authorized by Congress and whether it was not "suspending further recruiting for lack of training facilities" although army officials said that the goal of 40,000 otherwise could have been reached.

Calendar Will Govern What French Can Drink

Vichy, France, Aug. 24 (P)—From now on, Frenchmen will have to watch the calendar to know what kind of alcoholic drinks they can buy on any given day.

Under a new law effective today the government clamped down restrictions on liquor sales—aimed especially at the strong aperitifs which the French love to sip at sidewalk cafes—on a calendar basis.

On three days a week—Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday—the only drinks which may be sold are wines, beer, champagne and fruit juices.

The other four days customers may order aperitifs containing no more than 15 per cent of alcohol, or, if they like, drinks such as brandy.

However, drinks based on absinthe, anis and strong vermouths are prohibited entirely to Frenchmen. Henceforth they may be manufactured for export only.

Wines and beer may be ordered freely at any time, and even on the three "prohibition" days brandy may be purchased by the bottle for home consumption.

Traffic Arrests Continue in City

Many Forfeit Bail Left for Appearance Today

The Kingston police department on Friday continued its drive on automobiles accused of traffic violations and arrested four charged with overtime parking in the up-town business district; two on charges of failing to observe full stop signs, and two charged with passing a red traffic light on Broadway at Chester street.

Albert F. Tanner of Utica was fined $2 for passing the red light, while Robert Whitmeyer of Rome, N. Y., charged with a similar offense, forfeited $5 cash bail by failing to appear in court today. Those who forfeited $2 bail each on charges of overtime parking were: Josephine Paleadino of Highland, Everice Parsons, county Home Bureau agent, Edwin B. Cadwell of RFD 2, Saugerties and Oswald Pietz of RFD 3, Kingston.

Christopher Zakian of Philadelphia and Maxwell Kalifian of Brooklyn, both charged with failing to observe full stop signs, each forfeited $5 cash bail by failing to appear in police court.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—In another of the slowest markets in 22 years, leading stocks today loitered in an exceptionally narrow range.

The main excuse put forward by brokers for the inept performance was that traders generally feared the war news might become worse over the week-end and the majority, even those with strong bullish inclinations, seemingly decided that getting out on a speculative limb at this time was a bit too hazardous. A summer vacation atmosphere pervaded boardrooms.

Apathy ruled at the start and dealings slackened even further as the session proceeded. The ticker tape frequently came to a full stop for lengthy intervals. For the two hours the turnover was well under 100,000 shares.

Shares ahead at one time or another included Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Kennecott, Westinghouse, International Paper Preferred and Pennsylvania.

Behind now and then were General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Glenn Martin, International Nickel, American Smelting, N. Y. Central, Great Northern and Johns-Manville.

Bonds and commodities were unable to climb out of the rut. In a virtually motionless curb support was accorded Pittsburgh Plate Glass, United Light & Power "A" and Insurance Co. of North America. Lagging were Electric Bond & Share, Republic Aviation and United Wall Paper.

Deputy Sheriff Segelken and McCullough found that the accident took place when the two cars driven as they were being driven in the same direction.

Market Takes Turn Downward Friday After Earlier Climb

The stock market turned downward Friday, after moving forward for the past five sessions and all Dow-Jones averages showed losses for the day, although less than the gains of the previous day. The industrials had a net loss of 1.12, closing at 125.34; rails were down .28, to 26.81 and utilities lost the same amount, to close at 22.00. Volume was not heavy, transactions totaling 290,000 shares vs. 440,000 Thursday.

Commodities eased with stocks, most staples turning reactionary after early firmness and the index lost 0.16 point for the day. Wheat closed above the lows for the day but with losses of 3/4 to 1 1/2 cents a bushel at Chicago. Cotton declined seven to eight points. Sugar moved against the general trend, domestic contracts rallying three to four points on possibility of a quota cut; as high as 2.66 a pound was paid for duty-free raws due next month. Announcement that Great Britain would not buy the entire South African wool clip sent wool tops up one to four points.

Corporate bonds declined and speculative issues receded on profit-taking. Treasuries declined slightly and foreign obligations lost ground.

London market was easier as some profit-taking developed. The Times industrial averages showed a drop for the first in over a week, but the change was slight.

Studebaker officials state that the company has spent $5,000,000 in tooling for its new cars and are expecting to see 1941 model sales show a gain of around 40 per cent over the 1940 model year.

Federal Reserve reports show that nationwide department store sales for the week ended August 17 were seven per cent ahead of the same period last year. There was some slackening in the rate of increase, however, as compared with the August 10 week, when gain was eight per cent over last year. In the New York district the gain last week was 6.8 per cent over 1939, slightly less than the average for the country as a whole.

Exports from the U. S. totaled $317,000,000 in July, a drop from the $350,000,000 reported in June, but still well ahead of a year ago, when the total was $230,000,000. Imports in July were $232,000,000. England was the principal buyer last month. France, which took $47,000,000 worth of merchandise from the U. S. in June took shipments in July of less than $500,000.

General Motors will start immediate construction of a new Delco-Remy plant at Anderson, Ind. It will be an aluminum foundry for manufacture of aluminum castings for airplane engines being built by the General Motors Allison Engineering Division at Indianapolis in connection with the national defense program.

But two of the 15 most active stocks in Friday's trading showed plus signs. They were Nash-Kelvinator, which led the list with turnover of 10,600 shares and gained 3/4, and International Nickel, second most active, up 1/4 for the day.

Two Autos Come Together On Route 9-W Near Milton

Two persons were slightly injured in a collision about 4:45 o'clock this morning near Milton when cars driven by Ivo Hall of Solway and Peter Simone of Highland met head-on.

Carrie Alfonsoetti of Solway received lacerations about the nose and Anthony Alfonsoetti of the same place had a broken left thumb. They were passengers in the Hall car along with Nicholas Alfonsoetti of Solway, Louis Emanuele and Marjorie DeCarlo of Syracuse.

Sergeant Hulse, who investigated the accident, said that the head-on crash took place when Hall, driving south, pulled wide on the curve near the Ship's Lantern Inn and struck the Simone car, which was proceeding north.

Both cars were badly damaged in front. Two cars were reported to have crashed on the East Chester street by-pass at the intersection of Flatbush avenue shortly after 10 o'clock today. The police were investigating at the time The Freeman went to press. No one was admitted to the hospitals. Occupants were taken away in private cars before the arrival of Conner's ambulance.

At State Fair Trooper James Benson, stationed at Highland with Sergeant E. J. Hulse, left today for Syracuse for duty at the State Fair.

Denike's Condition Given As Not Greatly Changed

The latest word received by Harold B. Denike of Saugerties regarding the condition of his son, John Denike, injured in an accident at Orangeburg, S. C., Wednesday, was that he was "holding his own."

Reports coming from the Orangeburg hospital indicate that William Buhl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buhl, who was in the same accident, is in a not too favorable condition. Mrs. Buhl took a late bus from Saugerties to New York last night and was to leave by train for Orangeburg this morning. Buhl was reported to have suffered serious back injuries and it is understood will undergo an operation.

Mr. Buhl is in Orangeburg, having come up from West Palm Beach following the accident. The two young men were returning from West Palm Beach, where they had taken some of the Buhl household articles, from Saugerties, when the collision in which they were injured took place.

Mrs. Denike left for Orangeburg Thursday morning.

For health's sake
let your child DANCE

Dancing should be a part of every child's education. Have you ever watched children who have been given the advantages of proper dance training? Immediately you would have noticed the effect of such training, especially in youngsters of pre-adolescent age—their utter lack of shyness—their love of the dance—their instinctive response to music—and, most important of all, their firm, vibrant, healthy bodies.

Dancing develops those muscles which might otherwise remain unused. It creates a perfect unity of mind and body through the concentration necessary to synchronize music and body movement. The "awkward" age, so common with the adolescent, rarely comes to the child educated in dance fundamentals. And, too, dance training will create in a child those expressive qualities which will, in later years, prove a valuable asset in business, professional, and social activities.

Features; Two Silver
Trophy Awards

The West Park Flower Show, first presented in September, 1929, under the direction of Mrs. Alton Brooks Parker, will be held for the 11th consecutive year in the Ascension Parish House, Thursday, September 5.

With Mrs. Parker again heading the committee as honorary chairman, and with Mrs. William Annin van Benschoten as general chairman, the flower show promises to reach another year of its ever increasing popularity.

Mrs. Arthur McK. Ackerson, wife of the rector of the Church of the Ascension which sponsors the Flower Show, is chairman of the ticket committee. Mrs. Richard Gordon, a summer resident of West Park, wife of Dr. Gordon Richard of New York city, heads the committee in charge of entries.

Two silver trophies which will be awarded the day of the flower show are now on display in the windows of Flanagan's Men's Store on Wall street, Kingston.

One trophy is called "The Rector's Cup" and is donated by the rector of the Church of the Ascension to the boy or girl who, in the opinion of the judges, has the best entry in the Junior Class in which entries made by juniors of 16 years and under, will be placed.

The presentation of this cup will be one of the features of the show and it is being offered as a stimulus to the young people of the community in order to stir up a real interest in flowers among them. Any boy or girl may complete in this Junior Class.

The other cup is the well-known "Sweepstakes Cup." This handsome trophy must be won three times in order to be owned by the winner. The cup was given in 1936 by Mr. and Mrs. William Van Benschoten of West Park.

Anyone may compete for this cup which has already created a great deal of interest among flower growers.

In connection with the Flower Show, attractive booths will be set out on the grounds where the women of the parish will hold a bazaar, another annual feature of the flower show which is proving its attractiveness.

All sorts of useful articles will be offered for sale at the fancy booth which will be directed by Mrs. William Yessie of Port Ewen. Mrs. Marjorie Mott of Esopus will have charge of the baked goods booth where homemade cakes, candies and other kinds of domestic cookery will be on sale.

An attractive flower shop, always one of the bazaar's prettiest features, will offer potted plants and cut flowers for sale. This booth will be under the direction of Miss Jane Armstrong of West Park.

Features for the children will include pony rides under the direction of Nathan Eckhart of West Park and a novelty booth prepared by Miss Viva Freer of Esopus.

A turkey supper, under the direction of Mrs. Theodore Oxholm of Esopus will be served on the lawn near the Parish House and during the afternoon and evening a two-part organ recital will be given by Mrs. Myrtle Jordan of Highland, organist at the Church of the Ascension.

EMILY POST—Saturday, Aug. 24
Tactful Hostess May Take Care of a Male Guest's Bills Without Embarrassing Him.

Questions of payment by a girl when a man is her guest are almost always considered difficult to solve without embarrassment to him—and consequently to them both. A typical problem concerning such payment is explained in the following letter:

"I have a college friend coming to visit me this summer. Since he is working his way through school, I can not help but know that money must be very scarce with him. He is going to be our houseguest and while this will save him a hotel bill, there are still some questions of payment which I won't know how to solve. This is a great show place, as you know, and I want at least to show him some of the sights, including the much publicized restaurants, the big picture houses, and the races—places where he can see some of the celebrities. But all this costs money, and I can't possibly risk placing him in the position of having to spend his. But how can a girl who is hostess handle the money without belittling a man? My grandmother and my father are themselves celebrities (retired). They are very well off, and perfect darlings, but neither of them can be dragged out of the house—not even to chaperon me! They say I don't need one, and I don't, expect to pay the restaurant checks when I happen to go out with a young man who is as poor as he is proud!"

Answer: Since you probably have a car, sight-seeing is not going to cost him anything. And if you take him to lunch or dinner at a restaurant where you, or better still your father and grandmother, are known, can't one or the other have telephoned the order for the meal and directed that the bill be sent to them? Having a celebrated and well-to-do family ought to make it easy enough! If they and you and the young man were equally poor, then showing him the celebrities would mean "hoping to run across them walking in the street!" In short, I can't see that you have any problem that a celebrated family can't solve in a few seconds.

Must the Guest of Honor
Stand Hungry

Dear Mrs. Post: Does the guest of honor at a formal tea have to wait until everyone has been greeted before she has anything to eat?

Answer: If the guest of honor really receives at the door, then of course she stands as long as her hostess stands. But if the tea is not as formal as that, the guest of honor should stand near the door until everyone apparently has come. Then she may sit down and drink her tea. If later guests arrive, she puts down her cup where convenient, and stands ready to be introduced to them.

Picnic Planned
The members of the Ulster Park-Port Ewen W. C. T. U. will hold their annual picnic Tuesday at Golden Rule Inn. A pot luck supper will be served at 5:30 o'clock.

Moderation in Jellies
It is advisable to work with small quantities of jellies for jelly making—from 6 to 8 cups is plenty. The jelly can then quickly be made up, which lessens the likelihood of over cooking. Overcooked jelly will not stiffen and will be impaired in flavor and color.

With Peaches
Peaches and butterscotch go well together. Fill baked tart cases with butterscotch filling; when time to serve add a few sliced peaches and some whipped cream. You will get plenty of compliments from this combination.

ALIEN REGISTRATION

The Alien Registration Act of 1940 is one of the most important bits of legislation passed by the present session of Congress and the fingerprinting of aliens is scheduled to begin on August 27 and to continue through December 26 of this year. So great has the interest of the public in the European war and in our political problems that this act, which caused so much anguish among professional political friends of the aliens during months preceding its passage, that little attention is being paid by the nation in general to the important work which is about to begin.

As a matter of fact, the publicity given the fifth column peril in Europe, with its future possibilities for trouble in America, greatly softened all resistance to alien fingerprinting, and induced those who opposed it to "draw in their horns" when they noted the rising tide of public sentiment. The law requires that all aliens fourteen years of age or older must register and be fingerprinted, while alien children under fourteen must be registered by their parents or guardians. A fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for six months is the penalty for refusal to register or to fail to submit to fingerprinting.

The dying away of the protest against alien registration is significant of the change which has come over the public mind during the past few months. This does not mean that there is any feeling against aliens who have come to the United States to get a new start in life, become good citizens and support the Constitution and the government of the United States. The truth is that the registration and fingerprinting of aliens is a beneficial thing for the type of aliens which we have just mentioned. The honest and law abiding alien has nothing to fear from registration, because he has nothing to "cover up," so to speak. And aliens of this type have not been opposing the registration act. It can easily be a protection and not an embarrassment to the law abiding alien.

Solicitor General Biddle of the Department of Justice recently said: "We should remember that all Americans at one time or another were immigrants from other lands. The genius of many countries, the aspirations of many races, have built into what is America. Unfortunately, there are some foreigners who are disloyal to America, who do not wish to accept our ways and who use our freedom of speech and of the press to foment disunity and sedition. These persons we shall apprehend, but we shall also see to it that loyal aliens are not unjustly condemned for the disloyal behavior of a few. Our registration will be their protection from persecution."

The case is here well stated by the solicitor general. Unfortunately, as he says, there are some aliens in the country who do not have the best interests of the nation at heart. Many of these got into the country illegally. These are the aliens which have protested so vociferously against alien registration, because they realize that the act will uncover them, curtail their activities and perhaps end in their deportation.

POLITICAL KILLING

The fears and revolutionary plotting which may lie behind the slaying of Leon Trotsky in Mexico are shrouded in darkness today and may never come to light. He had feared assassination all through his long exile. Other attempts had been made on his life. Whether he was slain on orders from Moscow or for personal vengeance may or may not come out in the trial of the man held as his slayer.

That sort of political activity lies well outside American understanding and practice. Three Presidents have been assassinated in the United States. In every case it was the work of a crazed individual who looked upon all authority as tyranny and considered even an elected ruler a tyrant.

The path of totalitarian government is strewn with violence and murder. Leaders in such governments think nothing of taking the lives of opponents. It is not so in self-governing democracies. Bitter fights are waged, but with words, not the deadly weapons of the slinking assassin. And when the issues have been thrashed out in the press, and on public platforms they are finally settled at the polls by a free electorate casting free and secret ballots. This is the civilized way.

CANADIAN DESTINY

Colonel Lindbergh and various other Americans may think it's the manifest destiny of the United States to take over Canada, and there was a little flurry of such talk for a while when it looked as if Mother England was going under. But lately you hear less of that. The more our people think it over, the more likely they are, perhaps, to adopt the view of the Philadelphia Inquirer, which says:

"Americans don't want Canada. Those who can afford it may do all the fishing, hunting and motoring there that they like, barring a few reasonable war restrictions at present, so we don't need it for that. A large group of Americans once keenly interested in Canada lost all interest in it when prohibition went out here in 1933.

"There's another reason of some slight importance why we shouldn't be interested in any proposal of this character that Der Fuehrer might have in mind if, as has been reported, he is willing to turn Canada over to us after the war. Canada, in our eyes, is a nation of free men and women. We have what may appear to be a quaint idea that they, not Hitler, are entitled to decide their destiny."

EGYPT

Egyptians, waiting belligerently for the war to reach them—as it soon will—make an interesting study. For 5,000 years that burned and baked race has been waging war and pursuing peace in its narrow confines.

Civilization has been piled on civilization, and the arts of war and peace largely originated there. Yet they are still substantially the same people as in the days of Moses and, far back beyond that, of the early Pharaohs before the Pyramids were built. And from present evidence, those troops in Cairo may still give a good account of themselves.

In Mexico a President has to get a friend to hold his job for six years before he's qualified for a second piece of pie.

The sun seems to have set on the French Empire, anyway.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION

We are reading stories and seeing motion pictures of emergency operations requiring transfusion of blood. It is certainly dramatic to see the life giving blood of one individual flowing into another who is practically at the point of death. There is also the picture of the wild drive of the ambulance interne to pick up a blood giver (donor) who has the right type of blood needed for an emergency case.

Much of the worry and drama is now avoided by the blood banks kept in hospital refrigerators enabling the surgeon to have on hand a stock of the various types of blood so that no delay occurs when blood is needed.

What may be a great step forward in blood transfusions is reported by Drs. F. R. Edwards, J. Kay, and T. B. Davie in the British Medical Journal. These physicians point out that it is the plasma (the fluid or liquid part of the blood) that produces the desired result, not the blood corpuscles, the red cells carrying oxygen to all the tissues. The plasma will keep indefinitely at room temperature and there is no need for any special 'type' of blood as when the whole blood is needed.

Blood is taken from the donors and kept for three or four days, by which time the red corpuscles get completely separated from the plasma. The blood used by these physicians was fourteen days old.

A further advantage of the plasma is that it can be dried and stored in tiny air tight glass vessels. It is thus easily carried, cannot become contaminated, and when needed the necessary amount of warm distilled water can be added so that it can be transfused readily.

These physicians frankly state that the number of cases in which the plasma has been used is not large, but its ability to prevent or remove shock is equal to that of whole blood. It seems to be ideal for use in emergencies, when no supply of blood is available, and in war surgery.

In the treatment of shock due to severe burns and scalds, the plasma has proven as effective as whole blood. Physicians everywhere will await the results of further treatment by this convenient method.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Aug. 24, 1920.—Ellenville fair opened. One Hundred and Twentieth Regiment held annual reunion here.

Charles Kline, 11, of Hunter street, suffered a broken leg when an auto hit the little wagon he was coasting in.

Aug. 24, 1930.—New York police notified the Kingston police that the auto of Harry Western, proprietor of The Chateau on the Saugerties Road, had been recovered just as two men were about to shove it off the dock into the river at Brooklyn. The car was covered with blood and Western reported missing. The New York police said the two men arrested were beer runners.

Policeman Walter Fitzgerald, who was shot in the left ankle in a revolver duel with two negroes in the driveway at the home of Judge A. T. Clearwater on Albany avenue, had sufficiently recovered to be removed from the Kingston Hospital to his home on West Union street.

Miss Louise Johnson of New York city will be a week-end guest of Mrs. Franklin Welker.

Mrs. James Conn of Marlborough spent Tuesday afternoon and evening at the home of her son, Elmer Fisher.

Mrs. John J. Gaffney and daughters, Mrs. Max Gruner, Mrs. Theodore Wurster and two daughters, Mrs. Max Gruner, Jr., and daughter, were graduated from Virginia Military Institute with honors 21 years later. A year after that he was commissioned second lieutenant in the United States army and his varied (but consistently successful) military career was under way.

The stories about him at V. M. I. are as numerous as the anecdotes of that institution written into the recent play and movie, "Brother Rat." In his "rat," or freshman, year, he was seriously injured by a bayonet during a hazing incident. But Marshall passed it off without a word of accusation against those responsible.

Marshall was graduated with-out a single demerit, senior captain of his class, fifth in scholastic standing and an all-southern football tackle.

Defense Plan Praised
There is another story that while serving in the Philippines, when he was a second lieutenant, he drew up field orders that were later described by his general as the best plan for the defense of the islands that he had ever seen.

Seven years ago this month, General Marshall was only a colonel. It was during the World War that he first came to the attention of General Pershing, whose aide he later became.

When General Marshall took over the army a few months before the Nazis went rampaging in Europe, he immediately set about reorganization. Some army men wise in the ways of politics told him he was inviting the axe.

But the general went ahead, quietly but firmly brushing the objections of politicians aside. Each passing month found him another notch higher in the esteem of Congress and the civilian corps working for national defense.

Makes Haste Slowly
The lean, wiry general, with a bit of a squint in his left eye, has been an apostle of "make haste slowly" in the defense program, but he never has relaxed his insistence on its expansion.

When the vast war games were held in the South last spring (the largest such peacetime maneuver up to that time), General Marshall said: "It was a successful experiment. It showed us our shortcomings."

"That," said a friend, "is General Marshall. He'd rather know an army's weakness than its strength."

Department of Justice Files Petition With Supreme Court and Thereby Slows Defense Machinery on Point of Contracts

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 24.—A strange monkey-wrench has been thrown into the industrial machinery of the whole nation by the department of justice. Just at a time when manufacturers are being importuned to help to speed up the defense program, the administration has filed in the Supreme Court of the United States a petition which, if upheld, will mean that no manufacturer can accept a government contract hereafter without subjecting his company for the rest of its life to a possible opening of the contract on the vague, general grounds that it may have charged too much for its products.

The department of justice would hardly have carried this case into the public press with a ballyhoo press release if it had not had the approval of those around President Roosevelt, who regard the whole war defense program as a tool of their campaign objectives.

The press release emphasized that it was important for the government to get its defense work done at low cost and to prevent unconscionable profits. But that presumably is the objective of the pending excess profits tax legislation, so it is difficult to understand why, in addition to the tax laws, the government should be held to possess the power arbitrarily to reopen contracts long after they have been settled and the money paid and distributed.

So unfair is the government's position in this respect that both the district court and the Circuit Court of Appeals in the third circuit decided against the department of justice. Indeed, in the third circuit, where there are three judges, the opinion was unanimous. Also, all three judges were appointed by President Roosevelt, so they can hardly be called reactionary or illiberal.

The situation presented in the cases is not one of fraud. There was bargaining between competent shipbuilding experts on both sides. The government recognized at the time that the prices agreed upon were not to their liking, but now the department of justice is trying to repudiate an agreement made under the government's eyes wide open just on the ground that the war emergency forced it to accept harsh terms.

The company in question is the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and in the ordinary course of events the decisions by the circuit court of appeals would have been acceptable and the case dropped. But the case afforded too good an opportunity for the administration's political experts to let loose cries of business profiteering, even though the whole episode occurred in the last war.

The opinion of the circuit court of appeals states that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation realized a profit of approximately 20 per cent of the cost of ships in question and that such profits are undoubtedly very large in view of the fact that the company took no risk. The court, however, points out as partial justification for Bethlehem's profits that (1) the cost of these ships was no more than that of many other ships built for the government at that time on both lump sum and cost-plus contracts and (2) these profits are spoken of only in relation to actual cost of the ships and do not take into consideration the burden on such a large organization in carrying its overhead during periods of inactivity in the shipbuilding industry, which enabled it to be available for the active service required by the needs of the government.

As a matter of fact, in the old cost-plus contracts, the manufacturers were promised a bonus of about 50 per cent of the savings they happened to effect below cost. In a case brought by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in the same courts, the company won also because the bonus money for savings was claimed to be due under the explicit words of the contract.

Uncertainties regarding the government's treatment of contractors is holding up the defense program. Many subcontractors are refusing to accept government work because they fear restrictions that will tie up their normal business. The administration's press agents are busy handing out propaganda smearing the business men, especially in the defense industries, the cry being that business is putting profits above patriotism. But anybody attempting to run a business with a customer who makes a contract and then doesn't stick to it, but seeks to waltz in court proceedings years later, is bound to be a little hesitant about rushing in to get contracts subject to such limitations and restraints.

What is most perplexing is that the department of justice publicly affirms the position that the government shall, by court action, be given the right to reopen defense contracts at any time, even after the money is paid and the work is done. Some legislation prohibiting the reopening of contracts except for fraud or dishonesty or willful misrepresentation of the facts would seem to be a logical sequel now to the strange procedure of the department of justice in asking for an appeal from a unanimous decision which clearly refused to accept the government's arbitrary position.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

An ordinance fixing the speed limit of motor vehicles at 15 miles an hour in Kingston was adopted by the Common Council at its meeting on November 3, 1910. The ordinance had been drafted by the corporation counsel as the result of a resolution to that effect introduced by Alderman Rafferty at the council meeting on October 21 of that year.

At the same meeting Alderman Rafferty introduced a resolution that the corporation counsel draft an ordinance requiring bakers and bakeries in Kingston to sell bread by weight as was being done in New York city. The resolution was adopted by the aldermen.

An interesting event in Masonic circles in Kingston was the presentation made by Wesley D. Hale on Monday evening, October 24, 1910, of a gavel made of granite and olive wood obtained by him on his recent trip around the world, to Roundout Lodge, No. 343, F. & A. M.

While in Jerusalem on his trip Mr. Hale visited the quarries where he obtained the granite used in the construction of King Solomon's temple and the walls about the city. The handle of the gavel was procured from an olive tree on the Mount of Olives. For years Mr. Hale was an active member of the downtown Masonic Lodge.

It was in November, 1910, that announcement was made that a building to cost $40,000 would be erected on the Phelan property on Broadway, opposite Field Court, to house the various departments of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company.

Wednesday evening, October 13, 1910, employees of the Kingston postoffice tendered a farewell banquet to Postmaster Walter C. Dolson in Burgevine Hall. Mr. Dolson was retiring after eight years of service as head of the post office department in this city. He was first appointed in 1902, and reappointed in 1906.

Among the guests at the banquet were Walter P. Crane, who had been appointed postmaster to succeed Mr. Dolson; Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, George J. Smith, Philip Elting, Surgeon Walter N. Gill, former Postmaster Andrew N. Barnes, C. Arthur Dolson, Jay E. Klock, William Coogan and Jesse M. Decker.

Jesse M. Decker was a widely known newspaper man of this city and one of the proprietors of the defunct Kingston Daily Express. He covered many important news events for the Express during the years he was in harness. Another reporter on the old Express was the late Walter Becker, who, when the Express ceased publication became a member of The Freeman staff.

Literary Guide

Evidence that the summer fiction market is picking up—

Doubtless angry at the slighting remarks we have been making about its low general level, summer fiction has tightened its belt and vastly improved its figure.

An odd, very Dutch but very affecting novel by A. Rootaert called "Dutch Vet" has appeared for one thing. This is the account of a veterinary whose family life tangles badly, and who then is unjustly accused of fathering the child of one of his servants. The situation is as old as the hills but the section of life explored by the author is not usual in fiction, and the accuracy of his observation is close to unique. It is a slow, lusty, honest performance. (Macmillan; $2.50.)

Not odd at all if Franz Hoenig's "The Defenders" but it is equally affecting. It is the Austrian side of the Nazi "conquest" of that small and helpless country, told in all too human terms. There is little ranting, not too much emphasis on the infallible goodness of the "defenders," and there is a curious and true adjustment to real life on every page, quite as much as the events. This is one of the most effective anti-Nazi novels so far. (Little, Brown; $2.75.)

Adeline Rumsey's "When the Bough Breaks" is exhibit three. It is a family novel, the story of three sisters and their surroundings, both human and otherwise, and how finally they concentrated on the daughter of one of them something, even vicariously, and how as a result the girl in question was the sum of all of them. Two things are remarkable about the novel—its accurate rendition of human values and the way in which it shows the limitations placed on human beings by the life of New York city. (Simon & Schuster; $2.50.)

In a more difficult field, Peter Viertel's "The Canyon" is equally successful. Nothing is harder in literature than trying to catch the feeling of a growing boy, and the overtones of his life quite as much as the events. This Mr. Viertel has done, with occasional flashes of startling beauty. (Harcourt, Brace; $2.50.)

And finally, two novels by well known practitioners, both expert. One is Mazo de la Roche's seventh "Whiteoaks" novel, "Whiteoaks Heritage" (Little, Brown; $2.50). The other is Sophie Kerr's "The Beautiful Woman," more serious than some of her work, the story of a professional beauty. (Farrar & Rinehart; $2.50.)

Keeping Pears White

To prevent pears from discoloring when you're putting up quite a few at one time, make up this solution: Put 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar in a gallon (16 cups) of cold water. Drop the pears into this mixture as soon as they are peeled. The pears will not be flavored by the salt or vinegar.

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: Taylor refuses to say why he thinks the ranch is worth $500,000. Constance seeks out Taylor's son and discovers that he is Pedro. He knew her identity all along.

Chapter Eight Shrewd Irishman

DURING their ride back only once did a strain appear. "What were those queer-looking cattle?" Constance asked, pointing back to the sleek cows with black heads and haunches, a white band going evenly about their middle.

"Dutch belted," answered Peter. "What is their selling point?" pursued Constance.

"Selling point?" echoed the puzzled cattleman. "Oh, you mean their merit? They're the Dutch what the Holsteins are to the Danes; quantity milk-producers."

And then he checked himself, looked quickly at Constance and quickly away, and she pursued the subject no longer but tucked it into her memory for further consideration.

Sunlight filtered through the willows, casting a dappled shade in the patio. The table between them, Constance and Pedro, for he would always be to her, faced each other.

Constance looked at him and found the romantic vaquero had disappeared and a shrewd black Irishman had taken his place. She was no longer a pretty girl to him, but an opponent.

Constance, had she known it, held the advantage. Hair ruffled by the wind, grotesque overalls and outsize shirt, she looked like a guileless tomboy. To one who had never studied the portrait of the late Michael Mahoney, there was nothing in the blackfringed blue eyes to warn them to beware.

"You said you couldn't explain your desire to own El Cabrillo," Constance began. "Why?"

"How explain love to one who has never loved?" countered Taylor. "Assuming I don't love this land," deducted Constance.

"We don't neglect what we truly love," reported her opponent. "Has any Taylor in charge of the land. If there is neglect, why lay it at the feet of the Cabrillos?"

"Admitting father has been managing the ranch for sixteen years, have you, anyone of you, since the death of your father, ever tried to understand how handicapped we are?"

"Has any Cabrillo asked of the land? Have they ever taken any interest in anything excepting how to get more money out of it? Have they ever suggested one penny be put back into the land or into the stock?"

"No land, business, or individual can grow without replenishing."

"You wouldn't understand the necessity of crossing strains to improve the stock. And you wouldn't understand the necessity of improving stock to meet changing market conditions."

"When father, five years ago, paid a thousand dollars for Red River Dan, a bull, your eastern agent accused him of experimenting at the cost of El Cabrillo and refused to allow the deduction. Father paid for him out of his own pocket because he knew it was necessary."

"He's done these things many times to keep life flowing through these acres and through the herds. He's fought for this place as though it were his own. And it has been a losing fight."

"Then why does he want to buy it?" demanded Constance.

"Men who know father's ability are willing to loan him money to put El Cabrillo on a good paying basis. They can't do that, and he can't ask them to, while the land remains in your hands."

"We don't know when you people may suddenly decide to sell to someone else. And you can't mortgage this place as long as it remains in your hands, because it is homesteaded. You can't even sell off a portion to raise money because you are bound by the stipulations in your father's will. So there you are."

"Cleverly Evasive!" PETER TAYLOR concluded, lighted a cigaret, and above the match twin flames were set in his dark eyes as they watched Constance; twin flames of derision.

"Satisfied?" he asked when she didn't speak.

"No," she answered promptly. To the Taylor she had expected to meet out here, she could have asked the source of the fifty thousand he intended to use for the purchase of El Cabrillo; the source of the money they had already expended on the place. She couldn't ask that of this man, anyone that she could have allowed anyone to ask such a question of herself.

She dug into her jeans for her cigaret case and Pedro was quick with a light for her. His hand touched hers and she started; started and met his eyes only to look quickly away. Resolutely she steeled herself against the fascination this man held for her, and when she looked at him again, the blue of her eyes were mere slits between the shelter of lashes.

"You've given me logical reasons for wanting ownership," she conceded, "but you're withholding something vitally important, just as you withheld your reason for knowing a Cabrillo was due at the ranch."

"You knew someone was coming."

ing and prepared for it. My reception was beautifully staged. I appreciate that. It gave me a taste of what my Cabrillo forefathers had. But those costumes had been well aired, not a scent of mothballs lingered in them, nor in the draperies or bedding in my room.

"You have been cleverly evasive. You are a shrewd man, Peter Taylor."

Taylor's head went back and laugh rang out. "You're pretty shrewd yourself, child."

"You admit the ranch could be put on a good paying basis," she went on. "How much would it take?"

"Have you some money to invest?" Taylor asked, lightly.

"The 'Charge It' Cabrillos, with money?" echoed Constance. "No, but I might raise some."

Taylor stood up, and now there was vague pity in his eyes. "It would take too much, Michael," he said, using the name so easily he wasn't aware of it; using it so easily she was stung to a belief that he called her that secretly, as she called him Pedro.

"Look at the time," he said abruptly. "Meg will be in our hair. We dine at midday on the ranch and you're dining with us."

"As for raising money... my father couldn't do it without owning the land. You can't without the right to use the land as security. And so, that is that."

"That is!" corrected Constance, laughing up at him, "is what you think."

She went into her room for comb and powder before accompanying him, and the adoring Dolores followed her.

Constance touched the chrysanthemums in their pottery bowls and smiled across their bronze heads to the maid. "It was lovely of you to give me this nice welcome. How did you arrange everything so quickly?"

"Eet was not queeck, señorita. Two nights ago the Señor Pedro, he come to us and say—'everything must be thus and so, the Señorita Conchita Cabrillo flies west to visit. Give to her the welcome you would give a Cabrillo.'"

Constance patted Dolores and went out to join Taylor who was puzzled at her sudden listlessness.

Two nights ago, Constance was thinking. She had barely known herself that she was flying west.

Telegram

MEG was waiting for them. Again Constance tucked her arm into the curve of the older woman's and delighted her with a running fire of talk about the morning ride, until they reached Meg's room where Constance would change back to her street clothes.

She turned then. "Meg," she began earnestly. "I'm going to put my cards on the table. I need to know something and no one will help me. I think you will, but first I want you to swear you will never tell anyone, especially the Taylors, one word of what I am going to say. Swear?"

Solemnly Meg Donahue crossed herself and raised her hand. "Out with it, pet," she urged, softly. "It was in your eyes as you came up the hill, and a heavy cross for one so young."

Swiftly Constance told of her queer love for El Cabrillo, her inability to visit the rancho because she hadn't the money; the desire of her family to sell and her sudden decision to fly out and see if she could part with it.

"And I'll be honest with you, Meg," she assured her, "I wanted to learn why the Taylors wanted to buy; why they were offering that certain amount, and to see if they were being honest with us."

"Now Meg, there were only two people who knew I was coming, my employer, and his secret."

"Heaven preserve us," broke in Meg, "and me thinkin' a foine lady you were, with niver a thought for the toll of money and its worth. Well, well, a workin' girl you are. Now what is it you want to know, pet?"

"Meg, I have to know who let the Taylors know I was coming, so I'll know who is trying to double-cross me at home."

"Well now pet, you can't learn. It come in one of those there amissitous telegrams. I'll get it, but mind you, niver a word of my showing you?"

Solemnly Constance went through the ritual of secrecy, then hugged Meg's arm, unaware she was cementing a stout friendship for years to come.

Meg sailed out and back with a comical air of nonchalance, then drew a telegram out from under her apron and stood back while Constance read it.

The wire, Constance thought, was all that Meg had called it in her coined word—amissitous. It was not only anonymous, but written in animosity. Her face paled and the blue of her eyes turned dark as she read.

CONCHITA CABRILLO ENROUTE TO RANCHO INCOGNITO LOOK OUT FOR HER SHE'S AS SHREWD AS OLD MICKEY MAHONEY FREEZE HER OUT AND WE'LL SWING THE DEAL FOR YOU WHILE SHE'S ON THE REBOUND

A FRIEND

Constance handed the telegram back to Meg without a word. "You know who sent it, and it hurts, pet."

"It... it does hurt, Meg," she agreed.

Don had written that wire. Don was paying her off for refusing to save his car.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

A man standing on a corner received a black eye when the door of a passing car flew open and struck him. This is a welcome variation to the usual alibi of tangling with a stationary, and is passed along without charge.

Grandpa—When I was a young man, my ambition was to have a gig and a gal.

Dad—Well, when I was a boy, I wanted a fliver and a flapper.

Son—Hey, Pop, how about me having a plane and a jane?

Has the motor car entirely upset the poor man's budget, and headed most of his kind for relief? It's easy to make yourself believe something like this, but on the whole the poor man wouldn't be as well off if there wasn't a car in the country. In fact, we are quite sure he'd be worse off than he is now.

Magistrate—Tell me, young man, just how did this accident occur?

Young Man—Well, your Honor, I had dimmed my lights and was hugging the curve....

Magistrate (interrupting)—That's how most accidents happen. Five dollars.

Drivers hailed on minor traffic violations in Colorado may remit by mail. Now if someone will just invent a mail order jail sentence.

An Englishman was visiting this country for the first time, and as he was driving along the highway, saw a large sign: "DRIVE SLOW. THIS MEANS YOU." The Englishman stopped in surprise, and exclaimed: "My word, how did they know I was here?"

Boss—Good morning, Mr. Bryson, I've been wanting to congratulate you for some time. You're one of the best salesmen we ever had.

Bryson—Thank you, sir; I always do my best.

Boss—What puzzles me, is how you sell so many cars to women.

Bryson—Easy, sir. When a woman opens the door to me, I say: "Good morning, miss, is your mother in?"

A Man and His Spot

A man should have a spot at home somewhere.

Beyond the reach of women's tender care.

Where a sheet may lie as left, until again.

The man returns to take in hand his pen;

He should own, regardless of his station;

A nook remote from wife's solicitation.

And his pipe dribble ashes far and wide.

A man should have a cranny tucked away.

Somewhere between the dawn and close of day.

Where his small thoughts of cabages and kings.

Are never mixed with women's sundry things.

A man has need for lonesome desk and chair.

In attic, closet, basement, anywhere.

Just from his wife's collection of debris.

Jimmy—Elsie, you have teeth like pearls.

Elsie—You brute! Are you hinting I have a mouth like an oyster?

It is well to take things calmly, but there is a difference between calmness and indifference.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith had been discussing an arrangement which implied the exercise of the "give and take" theory.

Mr. Smith—You know that it always takes two to make a bargain.

Mrs. Smith—Yes, but only one of them gets it.

Producers....

Beware of men who talk of our "dying economy!"

They were never the makers, but always the milkers of American economy.

Those who make America are the men who produce, not take.

Their faith in the future is such they don't sell America short.

Handicraft Gets Promising New Start by Woodstock Guild

Works Exhibited By Organization At Village Shop

Many Crafts Represented in Display of Works Which Was Opened This Summer

Hands have been the major agent in the creation of beauty at Woodstock since its humble beginning nearly 40 years ago and they are today its collective symbol of advancement to a prominent place in the world of art.

Many skillful hands have done their part most effectively in some of the best creative effort known to this nation and much of that work has won a permanency which will perpetuate the name of the colony for many future generations.

This mountain village was singled out originally as a working center for handicraft and through that first effort it has become a community of diversified production in all arts and crafts.

It is considered now a step closer to its original purpose since within the past year many resident craftsmen have made their presence more importantly felt through an effort which is itself virtually on exhibit in a little shop near the village center.

This shop is the show place of Woodstock Craftsmen's Guild and through its opening at the outset of this season, it was discovered that the general area known as Woodstock, has about every type of craftsman on the list.

Was Revelation

The shop, itself, is the outgrowth of an effort last November which came as something of a surprising revelation. Craftsmen of the village and vicinity were invited to exhibit at a pre-Christmas display of their work in the local art gallery, and the show was so successful that it gave rise to thoughts of a permanent organization.

Such an organization was started last February and subsequent to that arrangements were made for the shop in the building of the Woodstock Fuel Co.

That, in brief, is the history of a move, which looms now as one of the most important in the colony, and which in its first year, gives definite signs of going places.

Hervey White, who with Ralph Radcliffe, Whitehead and Bolton Brown, took the steps which made the Woodstock of today, said recently that the shop is something which the community has long needed. It is one fulfillment of the original idea of the colony, he indicated, and it adds much to its meaning and purpose.

All Types Shown

Just about every variety of hand-made item is on exhibit in the little shop and the general display is one of quality and pleasing effect.

All types of needlework, woodwork, ceramics, weaving and general craftsmanship combinations are shown and many of the exhibitors are well known for their creations.

Many of the better known artists of the colony are also represented in the display and the shop demonstrates also, in a number of instances that handicraft is a family achievement.

Works such as hand-woven portieres, tapestries, hooked rugs, and some of the needlecraft are on the higher priced lists while such items as greeting cards, doll furniture, carved toys, plaques, pottery and ship models range from the medium priced to the lowest.

Much Originality

Some of the works, such as an automatic self-mounting picture frame and a garden chair which may be converted into a table amount to inventions and such originality is shown in many of the other articles displayed.

Craftsmanship has shown up in places where it was least suspected and considerable outstanding ability has been discovered since the shop opened at the beginning of the season.

The organization now has an approximate membership of 80, which far exceeds its earlier expectations. The total membership including, life, associate and sustaining is now about 120 and there is an estimated $2,000 stock on hand.

The first season of the little shop has been successful enough to indicate better days ahead for the organization and everything points to more important developments within the next few years.

The following is the list of active members most of whom are represented in the current exhibit at the shop.

Display Shows Art Colony Has Many Skillful Hands

Woodstock's founders at the outset of their venture intended mainly to establish a center for handicraft, but this idea was never developed as originally planned. Many craftsmen have found their way to the community, however, since it has become more famous as a colony for artists, and last year it was discovered that there are just about as many turning out various types of handicraft as there are producing pictures and works in sculpture. A guild was formed last February and subsequently plans were made for the opening of a shop this season. Shown above

SHOKAN

Shokan, Aug. 24—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunter and three children were callers in the village center Wednesday. Mr. Hunter, who boarded at the home of Miss Bertha Green about 25 years ago while employed with the local B. W. S. force on reservoir construction work, is now assistant to the president of the Pottery Machine Company in Brooklyn. Walter who was a popular member of the younger set here, left the employ of New York City following discharge from the Signal Corps in which he served during the World War.

Thomas Marr has returned to Brooklyn after having spent a vacation at one of the camps along the Ridge road.

Lester Lawrence, member of the reservoir force is driving a new Chevrolet sedan.

Recent callers in Shokan included John Allen and family of New York who years ago were guests at the Allen homestead on the old state road.

The Algot Olsons on Sunday were hosts of 25 of their friends at a corn roast. The affair took place at the family camp on the old Black farm along the mountain side.

Philip Chopay of Springfield, L. I., has joined his wife and son for his annual vacation at the George Giles farm house.

Guests of Raymond Cruthers and family this week include Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sannis and daughter, Elsie, of West Englewood, N. J.

Norman North, local K. H. S. student, has vacation employment on a farm in the Stone Ridge sector.

A marriage of August 24, 1870, was that which united Eliza Saxe of Hurley to Miles Holden of Saugerties. The wedding ceremony was performed at the Henry Saxe home by the Rev. H. C. Earl, pastor of the West Hurley M. E. Church. Witnesses to the nuptials were Amos Holden and Margaret Saxe.

Mrs. Stanley Volnick of Poughkeepsie is spending a vacation at the home of her father, Charles Giles.

Henry J. Gabeline and grandson, Carlos Carlson, have completed an extensive job on concrete walk laying on the Gabeline residence grounds in the village.

Mrs. Michael Gorman and son, Ralph, of Brooklyn were callers Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Earl Elmendorf. Members of the Gorman family, who spent last summer in the village center, are sojourning a few weeks at the Cook place in the Winchell's Falls neighborhood.

Mrs. Mabel Paulson, an aged lady residing near the schoolhouse, had the misfortune recently to lose her dog and sole companion.

Miss Shirley Olson, who has been spending some time in New York, is again in Shokan.

Miss Nancy North has returned from a visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palen, in Brooklyn.

Mrs. George Giles is able to get around again after having been laid up with a sprained leg.

Mrs. Joseph Giaccone of the north boulevard was taken to a Kingston hospital Thursday, following a sudden and serious attack of illness.

Guests at the Longyear House include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Naughton and son, Walter, and

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terhune Jr., and two daughters, all of Mt. Vernon. The Walter Naughtons, who have a bungalow here, became the parents of a baby boy earlier in the summer. The new arrival and second child of the young couple has been named Garry.

Many wells and springs are nearing the low stage of last summer, according to reports from residents in the north reservoir country. The hard shower of last Monday, while of some benefit to crops, failed to affect water supplies appreciably.

Spending the week in the village center are Mr. and Mrs. George Barrett and John Robinson of Jamaica, L. I. Messrs. Barrett and Robinson, who are employed by the City of New York, are friends of Philip Chopay.

The M. Jones family, who recently removed here from Louisville, Ky., to occupy the mountain road property which they purchased of W. Kenneth Kukuk of Kingston, are preparing to add a porch to their house and make improvements to the barn on the place.

With the coming of the Jones family and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Vanderbent to Shokan, the Coons district on the mountain is well settled for the first time in years.

Both the Joneses and Vanderbents may reside here permanently. Every one of the eight large properties in the heights section has changed ownership at least once during the past 40 years, and of these, more than half are now the property of summer residents.

Red Cross Fund Now Totals $15,608.04

The campaign of the American Red Cross for the War Relief Fund has officially closed, and the office of the Ulster County Chapter announced this morning that contributions from the city and county totalled $15,608.04.

While almost $5,000 short of the goal of $20,000, the leaders of the Ulster County Chapter feel that the local citizens did their part in aiding the distressed war sufferers of Europe.

Coinciding with the announcement of contributions in Ulster county comes the report that the nation as a whole "went over the top" in its drive for $20,000,000.

Helped greatly by funds and materials from the people of the nation, the American Red Cross representatives in Europe are now striving to place aid from America in the sections where it is most needed.

Services at Lawton Park To Close Sunday Evening

The Rev. J. A. H. McLean, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Hampton, N. J., will be the speaker.

Good light in industry means more efficient production. In fashion shops it's potent salesman-ship. In both it's eye protection.

At the New York Rubber Company's factory in Beacon, fluorescent lighting relinquishes its decorative role for pure utility. Daylight lamps in industrial-type fixtures provide high visibility for the principal working areas in the Vulcanizing Department, where long rubber belts are manufactured for industrial conveyors.

Flexible Highway

Chicago, (AP)—Curbs which may be raised or lowered according to traffic needs are a feature of a new eight-lane highway under construction north of the "loop" business district. Each line of curb, divided into 25-foot sections over the two-mile route, can be retracted into an under-pavement slot. In each slot are hydraulic jacks and powerful springs. Electrically controlled pressure pumps raise the jacks, which lift curb sections. When the pressure is released, the springs draw the sections back flush with the pavement. Since three-fourths of the traffic moves north in the evening and south in the morning, the curbs were needed to provide a six-lane highway for the rush hours. During other hours there are four lanes each way. The curbs are spaced two lanes apart.

Yankees Clinch Tribe Again As Suna Wins; Reds Sting Reds; Cards in Third Place

Cubs Trip Dodgers in 11th by 5-4; Giants Lose to Bucs, Drop to Fourth Place

By The Associated Press

The music's the same, but they'll have to rewrite the words for the third-act finale of the major league pennant races.

It's no longer a case of how far will Cleveland and Cincinnati win by, but who wants the flags. Of course, there's no immediate danger—today or tomorrow—that they'll blow their chances, but for the past couple of weeks, the Indians and the Reds have looked like anything but a couple of clubs going after the jackpot. The Reds have dropped nine of 15 and the Tribe has barely stayed over the 500 mark for that stretch.

As matters stand now, with the Indians trying to save one game of three from the fast-moving New York Yankees, and the St. Louis Cardinals sailing along on an eight-game winning streak, it seems to be a question of whether those two clubs started their stretch drives early enough to get anywhere.

The Indians called on rapid Robert Feller today in the finale against the Yankees. Their two prize left-handers weren't of any more use in the stadium during the past two days than your dollar in a rainstorm. After Al Milnar was given a thorough going over, Thursday, the Yankees went to work on Al Smith early and posted a 5-3 decision behind the six-hit elbowing and hitting of Steve Sundra. Steve broke up the ball game with a two-run single in the seventh to lift the Yankees within seven games of the lead and slice the Tribe's pace-setting edge to four games.

For a time, in Washington, it looked like a Senate filibuster was on as the Senators and Chicago White Sox went in after an inning getting nowhere. But in the 13th frame, Jimmy Bloodworth stepped into the first pinch Clint Brown served up after replacing Bill Dietrich and knocked it into the outfield for a single sending in the deciding run in a 3-2 win for the Nats. Ken Chase went the whole way for Washington, and earned a 1-0 victory.

George Caster tossed three hitless relief innings to save a 6-4 victory for the Athletics over the St. Louis Browns at Philadelphia.

Meantime, the Reds' old jinx—Casey Stengel and his otherwise stingless stingers from the Boston beehive—turned up with their old stuff in Cincinnati and knocked off the National League pace-setters 7-2 behind steady twirling by Jim Tobin and some fancy flailing by Max West and Chet Ross, each of whom hit a homer and drove in three runs.

Cards Are Hot

Since Brooklyn's second-place Dodgers also lost, blowing a 5-4 verdict to the Chicago Cubs in 11 innings, this loss didn't mean much to the Reds right quick, leaving their lead at 6½ games. But back of Brooklyn came the Cardinals. The ex-gang house gang, which seems to be re-inflated with some of the stuff it lost during the last three-four years, whipped the Phillies 5-2 on Bob Bowman's six-hit hurling to run them out of the game in eight straight. This boosted the Cards into undisputed possession of third place, since sweet William Terry's New York Giants lost a 13-10 merry-go-round to the Pittsburgh Pirates and dropped to the bottom of the first division.

By their victory, the Cards climbed to 4½ games from second place and 1½ from the top. The Dodgers might have benefited, too, but their re-made infield couldn't stand the strain. Pete Reiser, replacing the injured Pee-Wee Reese at short-field, threw wild to the plate in the 11th inning with the bags loaded and none out to let in the winning Cub run.

For a time, in Washington, it looked like a Senate filibuster was on as the Senators and Chicago White Sox went in after an inning getting nowhere. But in the 13th frame, Jimmy Bloodworth stepped into the first pinch Clint Brown served up after replacing Bill Dietrich and knocked it into the outfield for a single sending in the deciding run in a 3-2 win for the Nats. Ken Chase went the whole way for Washington, and earned a 1-0 victory.

George Caster tossed three hitless relief innings to save a 6-4 victory for the Athletics over the St. Louis Browns at Philadelphia.

Bonnie Briar Club Youth Is Tied on 13th, Then Takes Good Lead; Other Winners

Montclair, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP).—Finishing strong, Robert Kuntz, of Bonnie Briar Country Club, Larchmont, N. Y., yesterday won the 27th annual metropolitan junior golf championship, defeating Stanley Calder, of Montclair, 2 up in the final.

The New Yorker dropped back when he missed a two-foot putt on the fifth. He evened the count on the seventh, went ahead at the 10th, was tied by Calder on the 13th, but then forged out ahead permanently.

Kuntz eliminated Joseph W. Mendes, also of Bonnie Briar, 5 and 4, in one of the morning semifinals, and Calder disposed of Billy Rohrer of Norwood, 2 up.

The second flight competition was won by J. Ogden Clutson of Forest Hill. He bested Peter Davis of North Hempstead, 2 and 1. Kenneth Dillenbeck of North Hempstead downed Howard Miller, 3rd, of Wykagyl, 2 and 1, to take the prize for the third sixteenth, and William Grainger of Montclair won the fourth flight, defeating Joseph Girardi, Westchester Country Club, 4 and 2.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—All right, let's go. . . The miniature golf craze is doing a tremendous encore in the south. . . Reason big league scouts aren't rushing to sign Harold Sammis, sensational Woodmere (L. I.) right-hander, is that he is on a strict six day week—won't strike a lick on Sundays.

... American Association expert says Johnny Vander Meer isn't ready to return to the big tent. He's winning some games for Indianapolis, but is wider than one of those Chatham county rabbits down in North Carolina. He scored a shut-out the other night and whiffed ten guys—but walked nine.

God Bless Americas

America, Ga., seems to be the melting pot. . . to wit: "The feature of the game was the Georgia-Florida League's first triple play of the season, performed by American in the sixth. . . Czubowski hit Wasiak to Archibald. . . New Yorkers get a thrill out of that because it reads like the Fordham football lineup.

Sorrowful? No

Several of the Saratoga gambling joints quietly opened the other night and didn't get a rumble from the law. . . While Oscar Meilillo, the Cleveland coach, was shaving yesterday, some jug walked into his room and walked out again with all Oscar's dough. . . Bill Kynes of the Bay Meadows (San Francisco) track, is at Saratoga trying to get Chalcedon, the Hollywood gold cup winner, back to the coast. He is offering to up the purse of his big race from ten grand to thirty as an inducement. . . Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Lechner, one of the better known New York golferettes, staged a private tournament for 50 of her friends, designed to repay many courtesies extended her during the season. . . Pitt's Panthers will play all eight games at home this year except those with Duke and Ohio State.

Today's Guest Star

Herb Simons, Chicago Times: "The committee of three Cleveland ball players which is supposed to report to owner Alva Bradley, of the Cleveland Indians, is treating them, has been identified as Hal Trosky, Bob Feller and Rolly Hemsey. . . No wonder the American Indians have petitioned the government to change their names."

Personality

Lefty Gomez' chief chore with the Yankees these days is to pitch in batting practice. . . Dexter Teed, the Colgate publicity expert, has quit his job to try to launch a new newspaper in Syracuse. . . Old friends of Jack Bennett, quite a middleweight out of Chicago some years back, should write him care the Sarasota Hospital, Sarasota, Fla., where he has just undergone a delicate eye operation. (Don't forget this, boys) . . . The Glendive (Mont.) team in the national semi-pro tournament is managed by Margaret Decker, a 65-year-old woman who sits on the bench and directs every play.

Fox Paw

Everybody is delighted Mike Conner, former governor of Mississippi got the job as czar of the Southeastern Conference. . . Mike is a guy who shoots straight all the time. . . But he pulled a boner or two in his acceptance speech. . . Always the politician, Mike said, "I want to be real close to you folks of Mississippi—I mean you folks of the Southern Conference." They had to tell him afterwards it was the southeastern he bossed.

Baseball Sunday

Sunday afternoon Charlie Grunewalds Home Leaders travel to Walkill Prison to play their third game of the season against the inmates. The Home Leaders defeated in the first two games with this team by 8-6 and 8-4 are anxious to win this game and also to break the three game losing streak. Members of the Home Leader team are requested to be ready to leave not later than 11:30 o'clock.

Boats and Boating

Local Club Will Hold Its First Annual Sailway to Ulster Landing on Sunday

By Richard O. Gruver

SAILWAY ON SUNDAY

Sunday is the day for the first annual sailway and outing of the Kingston Power Boat Association. About 50 members and friends will leave Fischer's Anchorage in the creek about 12:30 and cruise up the river to Ulster Landing, where the outing will be held. Ruggie Myers is chairman of the committee and a varied program of events has been arranged.

Johnny Heiser and Jim Geary, two local powerboat men, are going in for real speed boats now. They are starting to formulate plans for 135 cubic inch hydroplane which they expect to build this winter. This type of boat was originated on the west coast last winter and was introduced to the racing public of the east in this year's Albany-New York race. "Mel" Crook of Upper Montclair, N. J., driving one of the 135 class boats pulled out of the race at Kingston Point and drove up to Fischer's where he gave "Chick" Miller and Bill Baer a thrill ride up the narrow course to Eddyville at 60 m.p.h. Incidentally, "Mel" Crook is one of the outstanding names in boating, having raced outboards for several years being among the top-notchers, then he turned to inboard hydros and won the National Sweepstakes at Red Bank last year in the inboard hydro class. He will defend his title this week-end, Saturday and Sunday, August 24 and 25, on the same course, the Shrewsbury river at Red Bank, N. J.

"Mel" also serves as an official starter at the intercollegiate championships at Geneva, N. Y. each year and is a steady contributor to the "Rudder" magazine, writing both interesting stories and helpful suggestions relative to boating.

"Ted" and "Kas" Stanley are really enjoying their Ayre-Craft runabout after experiencing several setbacks. This boat was originally an outboard and was repowered with a Ford A marine conversion engine this spring. . . .

Several fine boats have been added to the fleet at Fischer's Anchorage during the past week. Among them is a 14-foot Wolven outboard runabout owned by Jim Geary and a 22-foot Gar Wood inboard runabout purchased by A. J. Manus. Wittenberg garage man. Roger Reardon acquired a 34-foot cruiser in Long Island recently and will sail it up the Hudson to the local anchorage next week. . . .

Many people who spend leisure time along the Hudson river and the Rondout creek have inquired about the 30-odd-foot white runabout which is a regular week-end visitor to Eddyville. This boat is owned by a Poughkeepsie oil dealer and was the former Baby Gar IV originally built and owned by Gar Wood. It was one of the several that Wood used in his race with the Twentieth Century Limited about fifteen years ago. This craft is powered with a 450 h. p. Liberty airplane engine and is capable of doing 55 m.p.h. . . .

Al White of Poughkeepsie, one of the outboard racing family, is spending a few days at the anchorage in Eddyville. Al was the runner-up in the Connecticut championships regatta held at Norwalk, Conn. last Sunday. He intends to race in the runabout events at the National Sweepstakes to be run at Red Bank, N. J. Saturday and Sunday. . . .

CRUISE TO FLORIDA PLANNED

An escorted cruise along the Eastern Intracoastal Waterway has been projected by the American Power Boat Association for owners of recreational craft who will head southward this fall after the close of the boating season in northern waters. Chester A. Bentley, of the Larchmont (N. Y.) Yacht Club and vice chairman of the A. P. B. A. Cruise committee, is handling arrangements for the maneuvers which are scheduled tentatively to start from New York on October 14.

Bowling Meeting Slated Next Week

The Independent Bowling League will hold its first meeting of the season Thursday night at the Central Recreation alleys at 8:45 o'clock.

Owner of Senators, Trapshooter Wins Griffith, Has to Grand Handicap Buy Adopted Son With 98 Out of 100

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP).—Clark (the Old Fox) Griffith, whose baseball trades the legend, found himself involved today in one of the strangest deals of his long career—he had to buy his adopted son.

"I've just bought Sherrod Robertson," he announced, "because I've changed my mind about him. I've decided he's going to be a ball player after all."

"Sherrod Robertson?"

"Yep," said the president of the Washington Senators. "I'm bringing him up from Charlotte. He needs a lot of seasoning, of course, but I believe he's got it."

"Yep," Griffith confessed, "he's one of the children I adopted back when he was almost a baby."

It was an odd case. Clark Griffith having to buy a ball player whom he practically raised from the cradle.

"Well, you see," said the old fox, "I knew he was a good kid ball player, but I just never figured . . . here look at his record."

Young Robertson is a brother of Mrs. Joe Cronin, wife of the manager of the Boston Red Sox. He's been playing shortstop for Charlotte in the Piedmont League.

"Last year he was Orlando, Fla.," said Griffith, "and he turned up with a good record, so I turned him over to Charlotte this season."

The Old Fox didn't say so—but you got the impression he felt it never live down if he let some other big league team buy a member of his family.

The Plank Road range will be open again Thursday, August 29, at 5 o'clock. Shooting continues until dark.

Thursday's scores:

A. G. Benoit	25+25=50
M. M. Peck	25+24=49

R. Coles	17+19=36

All Stars Lose

Before a large crowd at Recreation Park in Newburgh, the stubborn Kingston All Star team went down before the tri-county champion soft ball club, "The Patriots," by the score of 8-7. The local club lost the game in the first inning when the home team teed off on "Chick" Smith for six runs before he retired in favor of Chet Balch, who held the champs in check for the rest of the game.

Harlem Valley Game Called Off; Davids Here Monday; Elite Giants Booked

After the Harlem Valley State Hospital game was called off due to weather conditions last night at municipal stadium Manager Carl Husta began looking forward to his next three games. Sunday the schedule opens when the Recs play in Wingdale at 2:30 o'clock.

But as far as Manager Husta is concerned all of the attention will be focused on next week's pair of top-notch engagements with the House of David on Monday and the famous Baltimore Elite Giants on Wednesday, both at the stadium. Some of the greatest players in negro ball today will be with the Giants when they make their appearance next week.

Led by the ever-present Jimmy Woods, the "Bearded Beavers" will be out to take Kingston in'o camp again Monday. In the first game a number of weeks ago the Davids took a 9 to 2 win from Kingston with Charlie Neff on the mound. But for once, it wasn't all his fault. The Recs committed seven errors to help the Davids win the decision.

The usual familiar faces of Watson, Vann, Leonard, Helixon, Bill Shadowen, Woods, Battle, Comiskey, Pnone, McGloin and Janesko and all the other David members will be with the club Monday night. As all sport fans will admit the Davids are one of the best attractions in semi-pro ball today. Kingston diamond followers are always anxious to see these boys in action and it is expected that one of the largest turnouts of the season will be in the stands when the Recreations and House open battle.

Giants in Second

As of the standings released Saturday, August 17, the Baltimore Elite Giants were in second place in the Negro National League. The Homestead Grays were in first place with a 22 wins and nine defeats. The Cuban Stars, who appeared here Wednesday, were in third place according to those latest standings.

From top to bottom the Elite Giants are packed with high class players. Last season the Giants won the Negro National League and again this year the club is making a serious bid in the wind-up of the race for first place honor. Larry Butts, the Elite shortstop, is one of the power hitters of the league today with an average of .391 and rates with the best of the defensive fielders.

At first base the Baltimore machine boasts of one of the best first sackers in the negro game in "Red" Moore, a flashy fielder and a dangerous hitter. The Elite's catcher, Bill Perkins, has been mentioned several times as one of the best backstops in the league. In the recent East-West All Star game for the negroes in Comiskey Park, Chicago, Perkins handled the slants of the Eastern flingers.

Not only is the club loaded down with fine fielders and sluggers but also with a capable mound staff. Bud Barbee, sensational young pitcher, is one of the mainstays along with Ace Adams, Moreland, Williams and McHenry.

So far this season Carl Husta's Recreations have been the jinx for all colored ball clubs, having beaten some of the best clubs in the country. The famous New York Black Yankees, the Brooklyn Royal Giants and the Mahawks Colored Giants were three teams on the Kingston riddling list of victories. Only the fast-stepping Cuban Stars, members of the Negro National League, were able to put a stop to the Recs' spree of batting down top-notch clubs.

The Kingston club will be shooting for two wins next week with these two classy clubs offering opposition. The Davids on Monday will be on attraction followed by the Baltimore Elite Giants on Wednesday. Kingston will have to be at full strength for the invasion of these two clubs.

Saugerties to Play Hyde Park Sunday

Howie Velie, the submarine artist will work for Hyde Park with Beal behind the plate. Ed Wallace and "Gabby" Benjamin will make up the battery for the Saugerties club.

Saugerties will use VanEtten, Rivenberg, Francello, Siminites, Keenan, Swart, Desmond, Benjamin and Wallace against the strong visiting club which has been playing classy ball of late.

Catholic Softball

At Hasbrouck Park Friday night Immaculate Conception and St. Colman's of East Kingston played a 3-3 tie. Immaculate rapped in the equalizer in the seventh inning. Komosa and Lucas worked for Immaculate Conception while Marone and Berardi made up the battery for the East Kingston team.

House Moved Mile

Adelaide, Australia — A. A. Stenross, of Port Lincoln, moved his house a mile by sea without taking down a picture or packing a dish.

Stenross built a huge raft, supported by 12 airtight drums. On this raft, he wheeled his wood and iron home, which had been built in sections.

Each section was floated intact from Port Lincoln to Happy Valley, a mile away.

The whole operation cost him 36 cents, for gasoline used by his motor boat, which towed the raft.

Some Gets Seats

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Blank pistols are standard equipment for users at the Harlem theater in the Miami negro section. Jack Woodberry, an usher, explained the practice when he was brought into court on a charge of shooting at a negro boy. He said his pistol was loaded only with blanks to frighten youngsters who threaten to crash the gate. Otherwise, he added, the boys return and throw rocks at the theatre entrance. A fine against Woodberry was suspended.

Four Persons Hurt in This Car

Four persons received injuries in a collision about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon between a sedan (above) driven by James Hudson, 31, of Bayside, L. I., and a sedan driven by Samuel Loeb of 215 West 75th street, New York city. Most seriously injured was Edith Hanson, 16, of 39 Hawthorne street, Brooklyn, who suffered lacerations of the left leg and an injury to her back. She was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where her condition this morning was reported to be good. Mrs. Audrey Hudson, wife of the driver of the car, was treated at the Benedictine Hospital for bruises and her 11½ months old son, James Hudson, Jr., for a bruised forehead and a cut on the left knee. Both were discharged after treatment. Hudson had a cut on the head which did not necessitate hospital treatment. All the injured were occupants of the Hudson car. The accident happened near the top of cemetery hill at Port Ewen, on 9-W. According to the investigation made by Trooper A. A. Whitney, the Hudson car, traveling south, had passed another southbound car and was pulling into the right hand lane, when the collision with the northbound car, driven by Loeb, took place. Hudson's car was thrown off the roadway and overturned. Both cars, badly damaged, were towed to the Port Ewen garage.

Hopkins Might Be F.D.R.'s Librarian

take the position of librarian at the Hyde Park, N. Y., library, recently built to house the President's papers and book collection and expected to be opened next spring. It was learned definitely that he will not enter business.

He has been in ill health for many months. Able to put in six hours a day at his desk, he is known to have felt that a cabinet officer should be capable of working 12 hours or more without a letup. Recently he attended the Democratic convention in Chicago. Mrs. Roosevelt's personal representative. Friends said the long hours of activity there were a heavy drain on his resources of energy.

Will Accept Resignation

The President, it was learned, will accept Hopkins' resignation reluctantly. In addition to the commerce position, he then will have, effective with James A. Farley's resignation on August 31, a vacancy in the postmaster generalship. Moreover, the position of undersecretary of commerce is unfilled subsequent to Edward J. Noble's recent resignation.

There were reports that the President would be in no hurry to replace Hopkins but, possibly, would choose a new undersecretary of commerce at an early date. This post is understood to have been offered already to Louis Johnson, former assistant secretary of war.

Friends for 16 years, Hopkins and Mr. Roosevelt have worked together in government in New York state and in Washington for the last 10 years. For several months Hopkins, a widower, has lived at the White House.

He headed all the New Deal's big relief agencies until he entered the cabinet in late 1938, succeeding Daniel Roper.

The billions he spent as administrator of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, the Civil Works Administration and the Works Progress Administration and the millions of persons to whom those funds went have made him one of the most widely known men in Washington.

"A heaping plate of uncooked weeds: a happy life of well-done deeds" wrote Benjamin Franklin of salads.

money available and the number of people certified as in need in the various states and that the amount of employment had no connection with an election or political campaign.

Willkie asserted that since 1933 relief registration has increased in election years and declined in other years.

"Since war broke out last September," he said, "there has been a steady increase in industrial activity and reemployment in this country. There is no justification for an increase in WPA relief rolls as a consequence of this increase in activity in reemployment."

Lawyer Would Ban F.D.R. From Ballot

Says 'Unwritten Law' Rules Against 3rd Term and Quotes Democrats

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 24 (AP)—The Massachusetts supreme court had before it today a New Bedford attorney's petition that President Roosevelt's name be barred from the ballot in this state on the grounds that an "unwritten law" against third terms was "about to be violated."

Joseph Ferreira, the attorney, filed the petition yesterday. His brief contained the following quotation which he said was taken from the Democratic platform of 1896:

"We declared it to be an unwritten law of this republic xxx that no man shall be eligible for a third term of the Presidential office."

Ferreira said the law had been established by "usages and customs" of the American people and that the President, in seeking a third term, was about to "violate" it.

O. O. F. Home in Ithaca. Mr. Eckert was for many years a member of Shokan Lodge, No. 491. A delegation of the members attended the funeral and at the close of the sermon conducted in ritualistic services. Burial was in the Eckert family plot in Bushkill cemetery. Mr. Eckert is a grandson of the Watson Hollow pioneer, Moses Eckert, and is survived by two brothers, DeWitt and Delos Eckert, who are local residents.

KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

Brooks Hall, (center) railway mail clerk on a New York Central train, held up by six gunmen at the Marble Hill station in New York city, was shackled to an iron post in the mail car, along with his companion. The robbers escaped with a mail pouch which they apparently thought carried money shipments but which postal authorities said carried nothing of value.
